

THE PARISH POST

Dear Friends,

Recently, I have been reading an excellent book on St. Augustine by a former college professor. The book is titled, The Way that Leads There: Augustinian Reflections on the Christian Life. In one of the more intriguing passages of the book, the writer states:

“Our desire to live the ‘happy life’ - which is ultimately the desire for God - may sometimes seem to conflict with our duties. It may appear that doing what is right is more likely to frustrate our desires than to bring them to fruition and fulfillment...Life is marked, therefore, by brokenness and incompleteness.”

While many of you might find this passage to be a bit obvious, as summer vacations approach, I find myself thinking a great deal about the way we pursue individual happiness. America is usually portrayed as the promised land of the individual. We have even enshrined this belief in our founding documents. Most school children can remember that the Declaration of Independence states that “all men are created equal and endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights” that guarantee us life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

What gets lost in most modern discourse is the key word: “pursuit”. Jefferson knew that governments couldn’t make people happy. While freedom might be needed to give people opportunity, it would be misguided given our own brokenness to expect that a government or any institution could make someone happy.

A similar theme is found in some of the gospel stories, where we see many folks looking to Jesus to make them happy. James and John got their mother to ask for positions of power on Jesus’ right and left hand. I am sure they believed that political power would make them happy. Another person asked Jesus to make his brother divide the inheritance with him. And even the person who pressed Jesus on “who was his neighbor?” wanted to justify himself, and make himself feel proud, or self-satisfied, before others in the crowd.

These few examples should remind us that it is easy to mistake our human desires for the pleasures of this world with what we believe God desires us to do. Put another way, Augustine once said that when he prayed that God would make him chaste, under his breath he was secretly muttering “not yet, O Lord”.

In this sense, I think the key to understanding Augustine’s perspective on

Deadlines for Upcoming Editions of The Parish Post

See page 14 for a complete listing of deadlines for the 2011-2012 year.

Christian duty and happiness is to see the importance of community. Christian life cannot be separated from the experience of worship and service to others that make up our lives together. And true happiness in this life cannot be separated from the grief and pain that comes from the relationships we have as part of the church community. As there can be no lasting happiness apart from a relationship with God, there is no cure for the brokenness of human life without the gift that our own lives give to each other.

In Christ,

Fr. John

PARISH POST DELIVERY CHANGES

by Jason Clay

Beginning in the fall, we are making a change to the delivery of our printed newsletter, The Parish Post. Instead of mailing it, we will provide the newsletter at the back of the church the weekend before the month starts. For instance, the September edition will be available the last weekend of August.

Currently, we are using a bulk mail service that takes about two weeks to deliver the Post. Unfortunately, this pushes the deadline for the Post back by two weeks, which means the content of the newsletter is not as fresh as it could be by the time it arrives in your mailboxes. Not to mention, this in an expense we can eliminate.

With the savings, we intend to send a limited number of Posts by First Class Mail, which delivers in a more timely fashion, to those that are unable to attend worship, or live out of town.

The Post will still be available in its online format through the monthly e-mail notification and the website (which conveniently include several years' worth of back issues).

COUNTDOWN TO J2A PILGRIMAGE

by Tina Tyler

The 17 Journey to Adulthood (J2A) pilgrims and 4 chaperones are counting the days until they leave for England. Their journey to adulthood has been a road full of self-awareness and spiritual learning. They leave the evening of Saturday, June 11 for a 10 day voyage across England where they will explore the birth place of the Episcopal Church. They begin in London and will explore sacred spaces like Westminster Abbey and historical landmarks such as the Tower of London. They will incorporate community outreach in Canterbury's St. Martin in the Field. The pilgrimage will help them to see their spiritual roots and learn about other cultures. It is sure to be an experience that will stay with them the rest of their lives.

The last two years have also been paved with fundraisers and personal financial obligations by each pilgrim. Countless hours have been spent working together on numerous car washes, bake sales, plant sales, pet portraits, fundraising dinners, and Easter Bunny brunches. The youth raised over $8,000 as a group towards the pilgrimage. They also had their own personal financial goals to contribute towards their trip through babysitting, mowing yards, washing windows and many other tasks at their homes and in their community.

We want to thank the parishioners of St. Martin's for their tremendous support! It is through their generous support of fundraisers and scholarship donations that the group of young adults will have this extraordinary opportunity. We are truly blessed.

SUMMER

by Mary Sheridan Floyd

Summer...such a brief time in a child's life...and it only comes once a year. It is a time when a child is free to explore his imagination, wisdom and uncharted territories. It is a time when the world is his and there are no constraints on time, no schedules to meet.

There are twilight gatherings of children, marshmallows roasting on campfires in the not too distant mountains, stories being told, diving into the water for the first time, swinging higher than anyone else from a sturdy tree limb, new friends being made and memories, sweeter than the marshmallows, that will last a lifetime.

Adventures, small and great, are undertaken. Creativity soars. Wonderful worlds open up and are explored by the minds of children as they reach out to take what is theirs – the future.

Westminster Abbey will be among the sites the J2A pilgrims visit while in London.

But let us not forget that in Japan, Alabama and Georgia there are children who will not know summer for years to come, if then, and who don't have a concept of future, now. Time hangs over them as they walk through the rubble of their lives. Let us open our hearts and remember all these children (and more) in our prayers so that at night, when they try to dream of lovely things and forget (for a moment) their sadness and fear, they are surrounded by our love and by the love of God through our prayers. May they sleep well and awaken renewed, knowing we cared enough to ask God for help on their behalf. These, too, are our children.

Should you decide to give, give to the American Red Cross for the victims of the tornadoes of April 2011 and to Episcopal Relief and Development (ERD), which is assisting in both Japan and across the Southeast. Learn more at www.redcross.org and www.er-d.org

PARISH PROFILES: THREE GENERATIONS AT ST. MARTIN'S

by Melinda Mischik

It is so exciting to have new families join us and we are fortunate to have had many recently. In fact, a church must have growth to survive and thrive. We are also blessed to have many families who have attended church here for a long time. We are especially fortunate to have three generations of one family in attendance on most Sunday mornings. These legacies, along with our new members, add to the richness of our traditions.

When I came to St. Martin's twelve years ago I met people who grew up here and were still attending on a regular basis. I thought that it would be the best thing in the world to raise my daughter in a church and then to have her come back there with her own family. I still feel that way.

Currently I can think of several "three generation" families such as the Easterlins, the Kellys and the Boatrights who are still here. The matriarch of one of the latter family is Elizabeth Boatright. Her daughter Susanne Snyder and granddaughters Claire and Kate are very involved in the life of our parish. The younger girls are in the Junior Daughters of the King; Susanne is currently the Stewardship Co-chair and Liz is in everything!

Few members have been more involved in this church than Liz Boatright. I will try not to embarrass her with too long a list, but below I have listed a number of the programs in which she has participated (I am certain to receive many calls from folks who want to add to this list). I put it together myself so you have no one to blame for omissions but me. As you will read in the interview, her list was much more modest.

- St. Margaret's Guild (founding member and 3rd president)
- St. Elizabeth's Guild (she founded it in 1980)
- Emergency Assistance Fund (First Administrator)
- Daughters of the King
- ECW – President (more than once I am certain)
- The Blood Drives (coordinator)
- Three terms on the vestry, nine total years of service
- The Bazaar (ran many different booths)
- The Choir (Liz has such a beautiful voice that she was in great demand to sing at the weddings of her contemporaries' children)

- Lay Eucharistic Minister (one of the first female readers here)

There are ten references to her in the parish history book written by Anne Shepherd. (Few lay people had more.) She is the original "Church Lady".

Most people know Liz as the Queen of Recruitment. She never meets a stranger whom she does not invite to our church. Once she gets them here she keeps them very busy.

Victoria Hastie, a recent newcomer to our church had not gotten involved at all until she ran into Liz and now she is up to her elbows with Emergency Assistance and St. Elizabeth's. That is what running into Liz does for a person.

Another gentlemen who will remain anonymous said the following:

God sent Liz to me at a low point in my life. However, I don't feel unique for receiving this divine gift. Apparently, God has sent Liz to help a lot of people in our church and community. We as a congregation are truly blessed to have this matriarch among us. Liz, we love you.

(Signed)

One of your many grateful souls.

I have heard many such stories.

This is my interview with the legendary Elizabeth Boatright, her daughter Susanne Snyder and granddaughters Claire and Kate.

Melinda Mischik: Susanne, what was it like growing up at St. Martin's? How has it changed for you?

Susanne: St. Martin's was a wonderful church in which to grow up. There were lots of children and teenagers my own age, with many activities planned for us. I felt like I was part of a large family. I knew if I was in distress and couldn't find my own parents, that there were many people at St Martin's to help me.

Many of the things I felt when I was young have not changed. Those same people, who would have helped me as a child, would still help me as an adult. It is a comforting feeling.

MM: Liz, when did you first come to St. Martin's? What was it like then? Tell us all the organizations you have been involved with.

Liz: I first came to St. Martin's in 1968 and was confirmed by Father Gable. In 1968, St. Martin's was a wonderful worshipping community, similar to today.

I have been involved with the choir, Daughters of the King, St. Margaret's, St. Elizabeth's, I served three terms on Vestry (involved mostly with outreach) and have been a lay reader.

MM: Liz, did your children ever do anything to really embarrass you in church?

Liz: My children were pretty good, but we had a few small episodes. When my younger son, Michael was about four years old, he put his head through the bars of the railing of the balcony and got stuck. He squalled for a moment, completely stopping the service, and then my husband, Bill, dislodged him. Susanne sang in church with the choir when she was young. A trio, accompanied by guitar, had been arranged for the offertory for Susanne, her best friend, Karen and another girl. They stood on the steps leading to the altar. The girl started singing on the wrong note and Susanne and Karen broke out in laughter and they couldn't stop. They never sang a note the entire song, they just laughed. The other child sang a solo. It was very embarrassing.

MM: Claire and Kate, is it fun to go to church where your mom grew up? Do you think you will come back here with your family like your mom did? What's the most embarrassing thing your mom or grandmother has ever done to you at church?

Claire & Kate: We like going to church where Mom grew up because we know so many people. (Claire says she will come back to church here, but Kate doesn't know where her family will be.) Mom and Mimi haven't embarrassed us yet, at least at church!!!

MM: Susanne, where would you like St. Martin's to be in twenty years?

Susanne: I would like to see St. Martin's continuing on a nice pattern of steady growth. I would like our church to be financially comfortable and our facilities well maintained. Finally, I would love our congregants to be full of joy.

MM: Liz, where would you like St. Martin's to be in twenty years?

Liz: I am very proud of our church. In twenty years, I would like us to continue our strengths, but reach out to each other more.

MM (To all): Of all the things we do here, which is closest to your heart?

Claire: I love Silent Night on Christmas Eve.

Kate: I love reviewing the Gospels in Sunday school each week.

Liz: I love how St. Elizabeth's has survived and thrived and worked for others all these years.

Susanne: I love to pass the peace. It is a good way to say hello to those around you at church.

MM (to all): Is there anything we might be surprised to know about your family?

Liz: Most people don't realize I was born in England, because I don't have an accent. And that my middle name is Middleton. I just knew I was going to get an invite to the Royal Wedding!

MM: Thank you ladies for answering my questions! I, like most people here, have been "recruited" by Liz to do various things that I had no intention of doing. How does it happen? One night the phone rings and then you find yourself saying "Of course Liz, first thing in the morning. I would love to do that."

She is relentless and a jewel. I cannot imagine what we would do without her. It should be no surprise that her daughter and granddaughters are following in her admirable and indomitable footsteps.

The Boatright/Snyder Family

HEARD IN THE PARISH

By Rev. Noel C. Burtenshaw

My grandmother, who raised my brother and me, had a couple of strict rules. I was to run all errands (she called it getting the messages) and Fred was to have complete charge of the kitchen. Fred was seven and I was six. I am not sure she felt I was skilled as a bargain hunter, or she was certain that Fred was totally skilled as a cook, But her plans were strictly carved out.

Fred could prepare the meal in a twinkling of an eye. He was totally at home in the culinary department. Even sauces were a perfect challenge at that young age and he never failed to meet a challenge.

It went back to my great grandmother, who was born in Germany in the 1890s. At the turn of the century, she won a cooking competition accepting the first prize of a trip to London. There, she met my great grandfather who was a maker of musical instruments. They married and she never returned to Germany.

The young couple emigrated to Dublin, Ireland (for some reason). She opened a German bakery that became well-known. A couple of her boys became bakers, but the next generation of young men became chefs.

Fred followed my father into the culinary profession without ever suggesting another calling. He was always at home in a large kitchen.

At times, I would visit Fred on the job. I especially loved his stays in the larder. There, the chefs would create spongy delicacies, mixed with sherry trifles finally piped with fresh cream and garnished with chocolate bits. Fit for a king! I learned that visiting (with permission) was permitted, but NO TOUCHING - that was the ultimate sin.

Fred liked the grill station the best. There, amid the fillets and the gigantic porterhouses, the pork chops and the fresh salmon, he could converse with the patrons as they hungrily gazed at the meal in the making.

Fred had extraordinary skills and he especially loved making friends as he satisfied their appetites. If the customer said to the waiter "one for the chef," that was extra gratifying.

Fred enjoyed his life in the classic white hat and the satisfying creations he made out of the wonderful produce given to us by mother earth.

My older brother, Denis Frederick (Fred) Burtenshaw, left us last week for different kitchen spaces. Though he retired a few years ago, he only recently suffered a stroke which brought on heart failure.

He passed away in a lovely part of Essex outside London. Along with his beloved wife, Margaret, and his six sons, my wife, Sue, and I will meet and celebrate his great creative life.

The Lord will call out to him, "Well done, Fred. Welcome home. Bon Appetite!"

In Loving Memory of Judy Frontier

On Thursday, April 21, 2011, The staff of St. Martin's Church joined Phil Frontier, and the staff, faculty, and students from St. Martin's Episcopal School to dedicate a new bird feeder in memory of Judy Frontier. Judy loved nature and teaching children about the outdoors. We thought that the bird feeder was a fitting way to honor her life, dedication, and many contributions to our church and school. Be sure to visit the bird feeder and remember Judy in this beautiful, natural setting.

A great opportunity to volunteer at St. Martin's Church: We have a fun crew of people who get together from 9 to 11 a.m. on the third or fourth Wednesday of each month (depends on how the days fall in the month) to stuff and staple the newsletter. It is a great time for fellowship! If you are interested, please call Jason Clay at 404.228.0777 and mark your calendars today. *The stuffing date in November is early because of Thanksgiving.

Have a great Summer!
